

OER Evaluation

Content Criteria Rubric

This rubric is designed to determine whether open educational resources (OER) are valuable for instruction.

Source Name: Terror vs. Horror Infographic

	Superior	Acceptable	Poor	Notes
Source: Content is from a reputable source (e.g., scholarly, highly researched peer-reviewed, leaders in the field) and is known to be authentic.		✓		The information comes from researched texts and relies on the expertise of an English teacher.
Intent: Content is intended to inform and is not satire, propaganda, or other misleading influence.		✓
Bias: Content is free from implicit/explicit bias and prioritizes primary sources.		✓
Time: Content is current or falls within the desired time frame considered relevant/accurate to the subject.		✓
Licensing: Falls within the scope of the user's needs.		✓
Relevancy: Content is insightful and/or useful for the intended audience and does not stray from the intended focus.	✓			The examples used in the infographic are relevant to literature and illustrate the points well.
Ease of Use: Content is appropriate to the intended audience in format and reading comprehension or may be easily and legally differentiated to meet those standards.		✓
